

EATER

The Hottest Restaurants in Manhattan Right Now, February 2018

These places are burning up the borough

by Stefanie Tudor and Serena Dai | Updated Feb 1, 2018, 12:51pm EST

Eater editors get asked one question more than any other: Where should I eat right now? NYC dining obsessives want to know what's new, what's hot, and what is going to be the next big hit in the greatest dining city on earth. So here it is, a guide to the hottest restaurants in Manhattan this month.

3 DaDong New York

DaDong — a roast duck chain in China that has some Michelin-starred locations — has arrived with its signature duck sporting a crispy exterior and juicy meat. The Bryant Park-adjacent space is huge, with 17,500-square-feet divided between two floors, including a swanky cocktail bar. New Yorkers have been amped for this more upscale entrant, with 2,500 reservations disappearing as soon as they became available.

