Celebrate Lunar New Year with these restaurant specials in New York City

When Lunar New Year kicks off Feb. 16, families across the world will gather over auspicious foods symbolizing luck, fortune and longevity. In New York City, restaurants will usher in the year of the dog with their own interpretation of holiday dishes, ranging from bright red dumplings to adorable pup-shaped cookies.

DaDong rings in the year of the dog by incorporating French black truffles into four new dishes for a limited time. (DADONG)

DaDong

This Beijing chain — famed for its Peking duck — made its New York City debut at the end of last year with a bi-level 400-seat outpost inside Bryant Park's Cube Building. For its first U.S. celebration, DaDong will offer each table a complimentary order of dumplings and lucky red envelope with a prize inside. (3 Bryant Park, 212-355-9600, dadongny.com)
